F. D. HITS 'ALLIANCE'; WILLKIE IN GARDEN

Divorce?

President On Way To Ohio To Air Address

G. O. P. Chiefs Tell Nominee Success Certain

Aboard Presidential Special En Route To Cleveland, Nov. 2 — President Roosevelt made a strong bid for upstate New York support today as he swung west to Cleveland after warning the Republican rank and file that their leaders had entered into a "new unholy alliance" with "extreme reactionary and extreme radical elements" to supplant true American democracy with an imitation of foreign dictatorships.

Before he reaches Cleveland tonight for "number 5" in his last minute assaults on the candidacy of Wendell Willkie, the President's schedule will have carried him through Rochester, Batavia and Buffalo, N. Y., and Erie, Pa., with a series of fast-punching extemporaneous talks in each city.

The Erie appearance late this afternoon will mark his last effort to put the "keystone state" of Pennsylvania in the third term column next Tuesday.

Tonight's speech from the Cleveland auditorium goes on the air at 9 o'clock.

Four years ago, President Roosevelt wound up his highly successful 1936 campaign in Madison Square Garden with the assertion he has "just begun to fight." Last night he told a howling crowd in the Brooklyn Academy of Music that "I shall not stop fighting!"

Foe's Name Not Used

The chief executive undertook in his Brooklyn speech to dissect the forces behind the campaign of his opponent, whose name he again carefully refrained from mentioning.

"Something evil is happening in this country," Mr. Roosevelt asserted solemnly, "when a full page advertisement against his administration, paid for by Republican supporters, appears — where of all places? — in the Daily Worker, the newspaper of the Communist Party."

"Something evil is happening in this country when vast quantities of Republican campaign literature are distributed by organizations which make no secret of their admiration for the dictatorship form of government."

Aboard Willkie Train En Route NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—Preparing for his own big speech in Madison Square Garden tonight, Wendell Willkie today inspected the fourth political speech of President Roosevelt in the current campaign and asserted:

"The whole purpose of the third term candidate's speech was to stir up class hatred and divide our people. That was the tactic of Lenin, the strategy of Hitler and the preaching of Trotsky."

From early afternoon yesterday until near noon today, Willkie's private train lay on a siding in the New Jersey meadows near Kearney. It was the longest period of comparative quiet the candidate has had in months and he used the time to stroll along the right of way, work on his Madison Square Garden speech, and talk briefly with Rep. Joe Martin, his national chairman, and Sam Pryor, eastern division manager of his campaign, both of whom brought optimistic reports for Tuesday's election.

Willkie's statement on the President's speech was as follows: "I listened to the speech of the third term candidate tonight. It was his fourth defense speech—defense of his own administration. Like the previous ones it was either obsolete or on order."

"To date the third term candidate has not discussed any of the real issues of 1940. Instead, he engages in an imaginary debate with straw men and attempts to create class conscious divisions among our people. He complains that the Republican ticket has the support of many different elements of our population."

NAVAL TRAINING VESSELS TO JOIN ATLANTIC FLEET

CHICAGO, Nov. 2—Nineteen Great Lakes naval training vessels today were assigned to active duty with the United States naval patrol along the Atlantic Coast.

Most of the boats will leave Monday to report to the commander of the Third Naval District at New York, according to Admiral John Downes of the Great Lakes Naval Training station, Ninth District, who radioed the orders to the ships after receiving them from Washington.

The boats assigned to east coast service are three gunboats, the Paducah, stationed at Duluth, Minn.; the Dubuque, at Detroit; and the Sacramento, at Michigan City, Ind.; twelve "Y-P" boats (75-foot yacht patrol cutters), and four 110-foot submarine chasers.

It was understood they will operate between Boston and Norfolk, Va. The gunboats are manned by a full complement of 150 men each, while the sub-chasers—the 330 of St. Louis, the 64 of Peoria, the 412 of Milwaukee and the 432 of Green Bay, Wis.—carry 24 men. The "Y-PS" each has a crew of twelve.

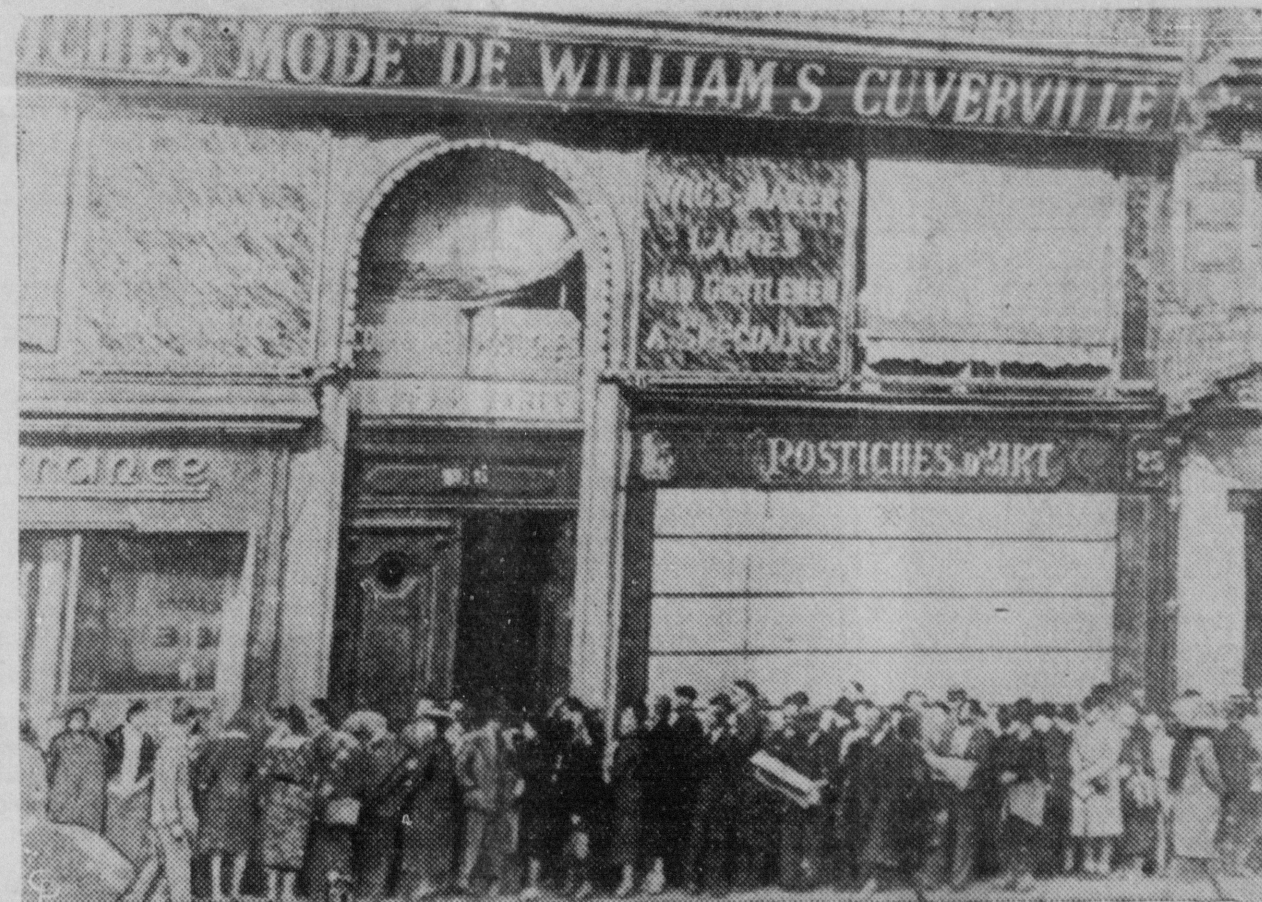

The sub-chasers are to join the "Y-PS" here and sail Monday, while the gunboats will gather at Detroit November 11 to proceed east. All the boats are manned by naval reservists from the Ninth District.

SCOUTS TO ATTEND BIG PILGRIMAGE TO MARION

MARION, Nov. 2—More than 3,000 persons are expected to attend the ninth annual pilgrimage of Boy Scouts from throughout Ohio when they gather at the Harding Memorial tomorrow afternoon to commemorate the 75th birth anniversary of the late President Warren G. Harding.

More than 1,000 Boy Scouts from Findlay, Sandusky, Lorain, Mansfield, Toledo, Cincinnati and Columbus are to participate in the ceremonies. A special wreath from President Roosevelt will be placed on the grave of the late president by Lt. Col. Dennis E. McCunniff of Fort Hayes, Columbus.

Job of Calling Men For Army Training Starts

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2—Issuance of conscription questionnaires to raise 30,000 men for the army during the next 16 days was reported "well under way" today by National Draft Director Clarence A. Dykstra.

The 30,000 men were expected to be called into the army on November 18 as part of the 800,000 to be inducted into military service for a year's training by next June 15. The order in which they will be called up was decided by the national lottery in Washington Tuesday and Wednesday.

Dykstra declared that issuance of questionnaires to classify and select the men in which their numbers were drawn in the lottery was "well under way in many localities today."

He predicted that the mailing out of the questionnaires would bring "a rush of work to advisory boards." The advisory boards, Dykstra explained, normally are composed of three lawyers, and, he added, "have been given every facility to assist registrants."

"In each state," he emphasized, "the boards are readily available to every registrant."

Under the conscription law, The Pickaway County Draft Board is awaiting receipt of its master list of names before it is able to send out questionnaires to persons whose numbers are in the early portion of the national list. The master list is expected momentarily after which questionnaires will be mailed.

Registrants high on the national lottery master list will probably receive their questionnaires sometime during the weekend. They must answer and return them within five days of the mailing date—or five days from the time they were first sent out by the local boards.

As a result, Dykstra suggested that "any registrant who receives a questionnaire should consult the advisory board nearest his home community concerning any item that is not clear in his mind as soon as possible after he receives a questionnaire."

Registrants may obtain information regarding location of their advisory boards from local board offices, Dykstra concluded.

Those who receive the questionnaire faced the answering of about 52 major questions. It was believed that every one of the 6,200 local boards throughout the United States would mail out about 50 questionnaires each.

It was believed that the initial quota of 30,000 could be more filled by classification of the first 35 on the national master lottery list, but 50 questionnaires were being mailed out in most cases to allow plenty of leeway.

NEW WEAPONS DUE AT SHELBY

Five Shipments Expected, Beightler Says; Garands Among Equipment

CAMP SHELBY, Miss., Nov. 2—Five shipments of modern weapons of war to be used by the 37th division are due at Camp Shelby within a short time, Major General R. S. Beightler, sr., commanding general of the Ohio division, said today at his press conference.

The shipments will include: Twelve 81 mm. mortars; twenty-four 60 mm. mortars; twelve 37 mm. anti-tank guns; four 75 mm. split-trail guns; 1500 new Garand or M-1 semi-automatic rifles.

As soon as the weapons arrive, schools of instructions on their use will begin, General Beightler said. The new armaments will be divided among each regiment.

The Garands and 75 mm. split-trail guns are new items in U. S. armaments.

The new 75's have a range of approximately 4,000 yards over the old type, making its effective range about 13,000 yards.

The new Garands were introduced into the army about a year ago. They replace the old Springfield bolt-action rifles.

The weapons are being shipped from the Rock Island Arsenal in Illinois and the Aberdeen Proving Grounds in Maryland.

Lack Machine Guns

General Beightler said that his division still lacks 50-calibre machine guns. They will be supplied eventually.

Firing ranges will be constructed in the DeSoto national forest. General Beightler said that $350,000 (Continued on Page Two)

RAF Continues Raids On Berlin Area; Missiles Hurlled on Capital Result In Increase In Death Toll

ATHENS, Nov. 2—In a spectacular victory over numerically superior Italian forces, Greek troops have routed the enemy along the Florina road in northern Greece and penetrated more than three miles into Albanian territory, it was officially announced here today.

LONDON, Nov. 2—All army leaves have been suspended throughout Turkey, the London Daily Telegraph reported from Ankara today.

BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE

Warfare in the air and on the ground between Greek and Italian forces went into its sixth day today while preparations were rushed by Britain to throw her mighty Mediterranean fleet to the aid of the embattled little Balkan nation.

An Italian communique announced bombing attacks on the islands of Corfu and Crete and the Greek port of Salonika and claimed that the Corinth-Athens railroad had been cut.

Two new raids before dawn on Salonika were reported to have caused heavy damage to industrial plants and dockyards, at the same time bringing the city's death toll to 59.

Nevertheless, railroad communications and postal service between Salonika and Belgrade, capital of Yugoslavia, were resumed this morning.

Athens and its adjoining port, Piraeus, experienced a 20-minute air raid alarm.

Latest air raid casualty figures announced by the Greek government said 90 persons were killed and 209 injured in Italian attacks on 13 Greek cities and towns, including 59 killed at Salonika, 14 at Larissa, six at Canea and one on the island of Crete.

Counter-Attack Success

The Greek high command also claimed that the right wing of the Greek forces staged a successful counter-attack near Koriza, Albania, where a violent battle for possession of a high mountain peak is now raging.

In addition, it was announced, Greek troops also attacked Italian forces near the Greek city of Florina in the Epirus region, where the Greeks succeeded in penetrating into Albanian territory.

(Editor's Note: Military quarters in London said the Greeks have advanced three miles into Albania along the main road leading from Florina to the Albanian town of Bitolj.)

At Athens and other Greek ports and islands, high-ranking British naval officers plunged into the task of charting with Greek officers and pilots the entry of British war vessels into Greek waters.

Some reports hinted at naval action already under way in the eastern Mediterranean.

Simultaneously, it was announced that Italian air raids on Greek cities had killed and injured about 300 persons, but claimed that Greek forces in the North were holding back the Italian military juggernaut.

No Peace Planned

In Rome Italian officials declared Italy has no intention of entering peace negotiations with Greece. They declared: "Greek rejection of the Italian ultimatum (demanding territorial concessions) set in motion a military machine which will deal with the situation."

Meanwhile, the war in the air between Britain and Germany increased in intensity as the Nazis (Continued on Page Two)

Norwegians Nip Attempt Of Party To Seize Greenland Areas

LONDON, Nov. 2—Germany's first attempt to penetrate the Western Hemisphere failed when the Norwegian patrol boat Frithjofansen captured a German vessel and it scrow of 50 as the Nazis attempted to seize five meteorological stations on the east coast of Greenland, the Daily Express reported from Stockholm today.

The German expedition, said the Express, started from the Norwegian port of Alesund, manning their vessel with a Norwegian crew and heading for the Eskimo colony at Scoresby Sound.

When finally captured by the Norwegian ship, even meteorological experts aboard the German ship were armed with rifles, grenades and machine-guns, the dispatch reported.

However, all aboard the German ship surrendered without a fight and were taken to the nearest port occupied by British forces, according to the Express.

OHIO LEADERS ARE CONFIDENT

Chairmen Of Two Major Parties Claiming Big Victories

COLUMBUS, Nov. 2 — With the major campaigning in Ohio scheduled to close tonight with President Roosevelt's speech in Cleveland, both Republican and Democratic leaders today predicted their presidential nominees would sweep the Buckeye State next Tuesday.

Democratic National Committeeman Charles Sawyer, of Cincinnati, predicted the Roosevelt-Wallace ticket would carry Ohio with a majority of upwards of 150,000. Republican leaders have predicted a like majority for Wendell Willkie, GOP nominee.

"Roosevelt and Wallace will carry Ohio," said Sawyer. "The majority will not be as great as four years ago but will be enough—probably around 150,000. There is no doubt that the President is gaining every day in this state, and his majority may far exceed the figures I have stated, which I believe to be conservative."

A spokesman for the Republican state central and executive committees predicted a sweeping victory for the entire Republican ticket "that probably will assume landslide proportions." He claimed Willkie would take the Buckeye State's 26 electoral votes by a plurality upwards of 200,000.

The Ohio gubernatorial campaign continued, meanwhile, with Gov. John W. Bricker, Republican seeking a second term, and former Gov. Martin L. Davey, seeking a third term, delivering broadsides against each other.

President Roosevelt then veered to the "conservative" side of his picture of the G.O.P. "unholy alliance" by suggesting that Commonwealth and Southern, the utilities firm of which Willkie was the head, would not have bought twenty-one million dollars of United States government securities if it had thought the federal credit unsafe.

Again, on the conservative side, Mr. Roosevelt quoted from a New York newspaper account of a Republican campaign speech "delivered by a prominent member of the Philadelphia bar," in which the latter declared the President's only supporters "are paupers, those who earn less than $1,200 a year and aren't worth that, and the Roosevelt family."

Jesus Declares His Mission

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—Luke 4, 5.

By Alfred J. Buescher

After His baptism and temptation in the wilderness, Jesus visited His home town of Nazareth. On the Sabbath day He went to the synagogue and stood up to read.

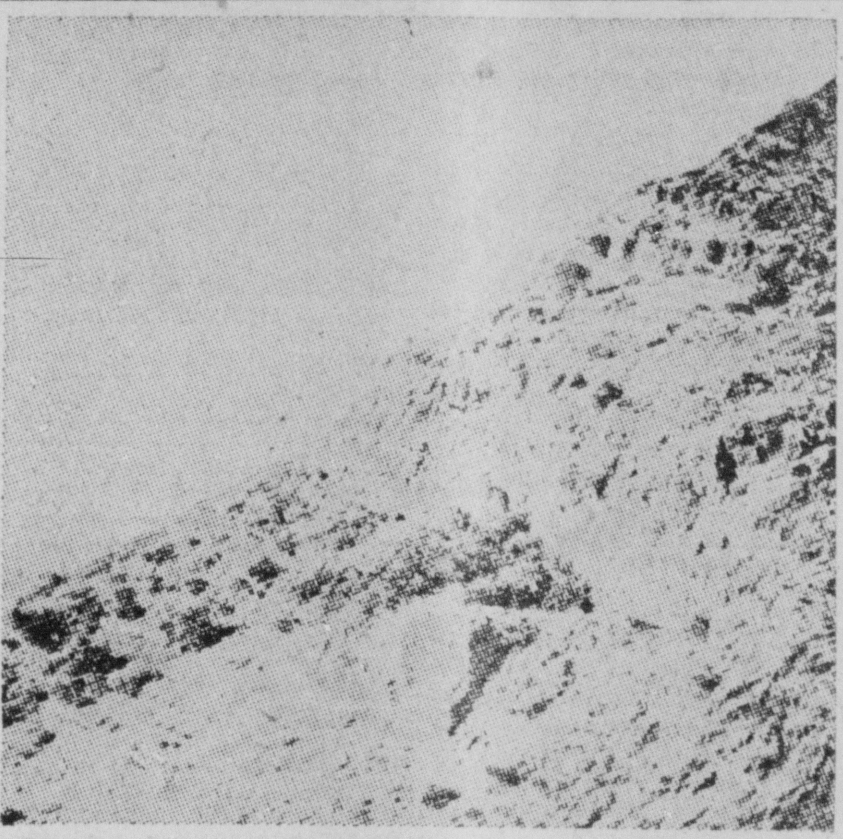

When He read from the book, "The Spirit of the Lord is upon Me because He hath anointed Me to preach the gospel to the poor," all the people marveled.

"Is not this Joseph's son?" people asked. They grew angry, and took Jesus to a high hill to cast Him down, but He slipped through the throng and went His way.

Jesus went about preaching, healing the sick and casting out devils. He also called James and John, Simon and Levi to leave their work and follow Him. (GOLDEN TEXT—Luke 19:10.)

The place where the Nazarenes wished to throw Christ over the precipice.

"For the Son of Man came to seek and to save that which was lost."—Luke 19:10.

The village Halloween parades Thursday night headed by the High School band was a really fine stunt, something new and different from former years. Prizes, too, awarded for the best costumes proved a splendid feature and had the effect of bringing out the entries. Among the prize winners were Robert and Richard Cline, young twin sons of Robert and Mrs. Cline, Bryan Grant, Ruby Miller, Ellis Cline and the three drum majorettes, Erma Bowers, Martha Stevenson, Ann Rader. After the awarding of the parade prizes, dancing to the music of the 10-piece Cascade orchestra was the order. The Misses Vaughn Smith and Mary Brinker were awarded a prize as the best waiters.

At a session yesterday at headquarters of the long-acted political tribe, a "Mr. Straight" whose name does not seem to appear on the sample ballots was unanimously endorsed and is to get full support.

EDUCATION AND POLITICS

QUITE an argument might grow out of a statement made by Prof. Mabel Newcomer of Vassar College the other day. "The great menace to democracy," she said, "is a multitude of uncritical voters easily swayed by slogans. It is the obligations of the scholar not only to find the truth but to spread it by speech and writing."

This is all very fine, provided you can figure out accurately just who are the "uncritical voters," and which classes or groups therefore need instruction.

A statement along the same line is made by C. A. Dykstra, president of the University of Wisconsin, who is now operating the military draft. He wants more intelligent action at the polls and better public knowledge of the processes and principles of democratic government. And he thinks this is a job for the colleges. Our higher institutions of learning are asked to "furnish unbiased information on important public problems" which the common run of citizens are assumed to lack. Also "a pattern of attack" to deal in the democratic manner with pressing problems of democracy.

Now such educators seem to assume that the higher education will necessarily make citizens wiser in their judgment of public affairs and more intelligent and discriminating in their voting. But practical observers may well question whether this is really the case. It is quite possible that Lincoln's faith in the common sense of "the common man" regarding important national problems is well justified. And you will find plenty of college graduates, with their feet on the ground, who trust the instinct of the plain people about vital problems more than they trust the knowledge and logic of the highly educated.

"TAKING IT"

HERE is Erika Mann, daughter of the famous German novelist, speaking from London to Americans in The Nation:

"It has hardly begun, the struggle. Everybody here realizes this, but nobody dreams of capitulation. The reactions of the people are of many kinds, and what is called 'morale' varies. But neither hysteria nor fear nor the slightest sign of panic can be found anywhere. I watched a man whose house had been bombed while he was away. He stood there before the ruins shaking his head and repeating, in the tone of some highly civilized person who for the first time discovers that bestiality exists among human beings. 'But this is disgusting, perfectly disgusting!'"

"Nor, strange as this may sound, is hatred, passionate hatred, of the enemy encountered. Rather there prevails a kind of pity mingled with astonished contempt. Stories are being told about captured Ger-

BRASS RING TO JOHN L. LEWIS
AKRON, O.—Out here in the heart of industrial Ohio, organized labor still is rubbing its eyes and wondering if it is really true that John L. Lewis is partaking of the same board and bed with Wendell Willkie.

Especially are people amazed in this city, where Willkie got his start in the utility business, and where he is credited by close friends of ex-Governor Martin Davey with being the behind-the-scenes figure who inspired the calling out of the National Guard against the CIO in 1937.

This was the famous struggle when John L. Lewis attempted to force the "Little Steel" industry to accept CIO unions, and when Tom Girdler, head of Republic Steel, refused to sit in a mediation meeting with Charles P. Taft because John L. Lewis was present.

"I've never seen John L. Lewis except at a distance," Girdler proclaimed, "and I hope to God I never do."

At present Girdler, as one of the financial powers behind Willkie's campaign, is among those responsible for raising the money for Lewis' $450,000 broadcast.

THE STORY OF STEEL

The steel strike was a bitter experience for Lewis; and to get the full significance of how greatly he has changed it is necessary to remember that this effort was one of the greatest in his career.

For years, labor had been attempting to organize the steel industry and had only such bloody monuments as the Homestead strike to show for its pains. Then came the re-election of Roosevelt in 1936, which Lewis considered a sign that the country would back him in the organization of steel. With the backstage support of Roosevelt, who was a good friend of Myron Taylor (later Ambassador to the Vatican), the giant U. S. Steel Corporation yielded to labor and signed an agreement with Lewis. However, the big independents—Bethlehem, Republic, Inland, National, and Youngstown Sheet and Tube—remained obdurate. And in the spring of 1937, John L. Lewis, with a strike fund of $500,000 at his disposal, set out to force union organization on them.

There followed rioting and bloodshed. Sixteen men were killed in South Chicago. Airplanes dropped food on plants at Warren and Niles, Ohio, for workers unable to pass the picket line. The Youngstown plants closed, but Girdler's Republic Steel plants remained partially open.

A rough-and-ready way to approximate truth during a political campaign is to add both sides together and divide by two.

man pilots who break down completely when they gradually realize that they have been misled by their leaders; that London is not by any means on the verge of collapse but is still a living city with busses running, people working, laughing and dancing; with food distribution and all the services functioning, and with children playing in the streets. "What can you expect?" the people say to one another. "Those poor fools don't know London."

And what can any enemy do with, or to, people who take grim danger and privation in such a spirit?

'ROUND CIRCLEVILLE . . . Hour by Hour

Pages From the Diary of An Antiquated Reporter:

Up and about the ville in a drizzle, noting that rain always greatly increases auto traffic and the consequent dangers. Streets are slick now with leaves on them, as slick in places as though covered with ice.

Learned that for three weeks I had been wearing John Walters' hat and never suspecting the fact. Picked it up by mistake, it being of the same color, make and size. Don't know yet whether or not John will charge me rent. He should, I think.

Met Frank Lynch and with him discussed the three mill levy on which we will vote at the election next Tuesday. The scrivener is opposed to tax increases except in case of absolute necessity, but this is an absolute necessity. The city's income has been reduced drastically and unless we provide more income many of the services we accept as a certain part of our daily lives will be reduced or limited. Unless you vote yes on the three mill levy our fire protection will be reduced and may result in a hike of insurance rates, our street lights will not burn, our police force will be cut. And that is the absolute truth. Don't forget it next Tuesday.

Chatted with Charlie Smith and learned of a woman who visited a fishing hole close by and within a little more than an hour returned home with five bass, the smallest being 12 inches long. And she was so confident of success that she took only eight minnows with her when she went fishing. Learned the location of the spot, but so far as I am concerned it is a complete secret. Will try it myself one of these days before it freezes over.

Sat at home in the evening and listened to speeches by Roosevelt, Hull and Willkie. Heard nothing that I had not heard several times before, even the campaign promises. Learned through emphatic declarations of the campaigners that we are headed for war no matter which side wins, that we can not escape a dictatorship, that we are headed for absolute bankruptcy. Gave me the shivers until I remembered I was listening to political speeches and that I believe little of what I hear in speeches. Thank God I have more confidence in this country and its people than I do in the politicians. And thank God, too, that I have read enough and observed enough in the past and present years to be able to separate the chaff from the wheat in campaign talks, at least to my personal satisfaction.

Did turn to the ice box at a late hour, finding there the running gears of a chicken. Great sport trying to find enough meat on that puzzle to make a satisfactory snack. I found it, enough to make a sandwich and washed it down with a big beaker of milk. Then turned to bed to listen to the occasional sprinkles of rain and finally find sleep.

Heart Disturbances

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Not all "heart attacks" are serious. Any time anyone over the age of consent nowadays gets suddenly sick, it is reputed to be a "heart attack," although it may really be anything from gallstone to a spree.

The heart does some peculiar and alarming things, but (as I say, the outlook may not be so grave. There are the minor heart emergencies—faints and flutters and "vapours," as our Victorian ancestors called them.

These sudden upsets are either self-limited, stop spontaneously, or respond to some simple medication. A thorough knowledge of such situations is quite reassuring. It is important to know when and when not to use certain remedies, and when and when not to get excited.

Fainting Spell

The plain, simple, domestic or garden faint has been divided by my learned colleagues into a number of categories. The one that most of you call a "fainting spell" is called by them a "reflex circulatory disorder." Emotional disturbances, or excitement will precipitate them.

I used to examine candidates for life insurance quite often, and many times one fainted during the examination. Once I was examining the pulse, and I had a finger on the wrist and both eyes on my watch, so I didn't notice the condition my client was getting into. I did notice, however, that the pulse completely stopped and I looked up just in time to catch him.

Another time I was taking the blood pressure, and again my eyes were directed away from my client's face, watching the mercury column which went down and down. I said to myself, "The man has no blood pressure at all!" and looked up again just in time to prevent him from falling.

These experiences illustrate the mechanism of fainting completely. The heart, through nervous influences comes to a standstill. It is a physiological axiom that if the brain is deprived of blood for five seconds, unconsciousness is bound to occur.

First Aid

If the patient is put flat on the back, the circulation to the brain will be restored and the heart will resume its rhythm.

Aromatic spirits of ammonia is the aid first thought of in this emergency. It owes its effectiveness to the fact that it irritates the mucous membranes, causing reflex stimulation of the heart, is rapidly absorbed and raises the blood pressure and stimulates the heart through the nerve centers.

Other faints described are vasomotor and carotid sinus syncope, but they all respond to the same treatment.

Answer—There must be some postural defect while you are driving—a badly adjusted seat, for instance.

CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

SYNOPSIS

READ THIS FIRST:
ROCKETING from obscurity as a small-time dancer and singer with FRANK LE MAZE, her partner and friend, KIT REILLY wins the Sember radio contest and a one-year contract to sing on the company's program as the successor to NANA HARRIS, well-known songstress, who is retiring. Kit was helped in getting an audition for the contest by VANCE HEALEY, famous radio sports announcer. Nana tells Kit of many of the problems she will face and advises her that she must put her career before anything else, including marriage, at least for a while.

CHAPTER FOURTEEN

THE DECORATOR was a very elegant young man. He was himself very decorative, arranged as he was on the love seat with precisely the exact degree of languor that contributed equally to grace, comfort and easy reach of the tea table.

Fran Le Maze, presiding with some uncertainty at that table, encompassed every detail of his elegance with a fiercely observant eye. She relaxed the stiffened little finger that protruded beyond the handle of her teacup, curving it in an effort to achieve the graceful effect he managed so easily.

Kit, catching the minute gesture as she raised her eyes from her music, smiled and bent her head again quickly so that Fran could not see her smile. If there was amusement dancing in her eyes as they rested briefly on her former dancing partner and present manager, there was also respect in them. She had little doubt but that Fran soon would catch up with the social graces momentarily and sadly lacking. This lack, coupled with Fran's rather free speech, were the only indications that she had not been trained for her present stewardship.

The Le Maze adjustment to the new life of the partners was more marked than her progress in the matter of physical change in her appearance. Wary, shrewd, and with an instinct for management, Fran had gathered into capable hands the threads that went into the weaving of the pattern of Kit's career.

It was Nana Harris who had suggested Armand Heller to coach Kit's voice. It was Fran who had lent a lowered ear to all that she could learn about agents and selected Morris White to handle her and charge. She sorted the press agents who had come flocking to them and engaged witty, enthusiastic little Jimmie Ferris to blazon the name of Kitty O'Reilly from coast to coast.

On the subject of cooks and secretaries she had put her foot down. "What's the matter with my living? I can outcook any gal my size and I haven't forgotten how to tap a typewriter. I had a year in high school. When we get an apartment we can have a maid, maybe."

It was the matter of the apartment that engaged them at the moment. Kit had found it herself on one of the after dinner walks that were devoted to exercise, to practice and singing lessons. After her noontime dinner there was a rest period, and on the days when she did not rehearse with the orchestra for the Saturday program, those hours were filled with practice at the piano, which had been sent to her by the House of Sember. Between times there were dressmaker's fittings, photographs to be made or conferences with Jimmie Ferris. Bedtime was at nine.

It was then in the evening hours, with the door closed between her room and Fran's in the midtown hotel where they lived until the apartment could be made ready, that Kit began to dream, the book in her hands forgotten. And to ponder perplexedly on the matter of Vance Healey. To wonder at the strangeness of things, that she had been sky-rocketed into his world—the radio world that existed in a single skyscraper—yet she never saw him.

There had been a telegram from him: "Congratulations and very best wishes, Vance Healey." It was even now a trifle battered, folded away in the corner of her purse. She'd answered it with a little note, saying, "Thank you very much for your telegram. I am more grateful to you than I can tell you. I hope you will let me try some day."

She'd signed it, "Sincerely, Kit Reilly." There had been so much more she'd wanted to say. She would like to have asked him to tea, but she didn't know whether girls still asked men to tea. And she'd remembered that Nana Harris had said, "When men want anything they go after it. If they have to be run after, you generally find they're the kind who run away."

The afternoon she'd found the apartment she had thought, "I could ask him to a place like this. I could give a party and he wouldn't think I was running after him if it were a party to which I invited him."

The apartment occupied a whole floor, and included four many-windowed rooms, in a renovated tenement on Sutton place. A yellow door with a great brass knocker invited her inspection. And there she found her home in the high-ceilinged rooms with wide windows that looked out over a miniature garden, over the ribbon of the East river, and up beyond the shadowy lace of a high bridge.

Across the room, Fran said, "Pink! In a living room!" The decorator closed his eyes and took a sharp breath. Kit stifled the impulse to giggle.

She thought, "He's counting to ten again."

He said, patiently, "Only a touch, my dear Miss Le Maze. We now have ivory in the woodwork, chateaux in the satin drapes. We also have the dark woods and the wood green of the carpet. We MUST have a blend." He appealed to Kit, "What do you think of this carnation?"

Kit got up from the piano bench and inspected a swatch of stiff satin with unpracticed eyes. "That's your department, Mr. Squires. If you say we need pink, I guess we do. The colors don't matter so much to me as long as it's all spacious and comfortable. I've never had enough—pace in my life," she concluded wistfully.

"Well, pink's a new one on me," Fran said wistfully. "What about them what-you-may-call-it's? These things that cost thirty-five bucks apiece?" She sorted the catalogs and, finding the picture she sought, passed it over to Kit.

"The Chinese figurines?" Mr. Squires' languid voice took on an edge of pain. "We do need them, I think. The unframed mirror I see over the fireplace won't blend without them. We can't—we really can't—leave the mantle bare."

"We can't. Indeed we can't. Can we, Frances? We've always had something on our mantles," Kit said gravely.

"What would you do with the pink and how much more would it cost?" Fran inquired, on surer ground again.

"Only a spot. Two tightly drawn satin pillows for the regency lounge, I think." He closed his eyes to hide the pain there and said, "The cost, as I've told you, is included in the estimate we agreed upon."

"All right," Fran begrudged. "But it sounds bedroomy to me." "We are designing this drawing room for a lady," the decorator reminded her in a tone intended to discourage further comment.

Fran was not easily silenced. She said, "You don't mind if we have a gent . . . a gentleman in it sometimes, do you?"

Kit looked up from the sketch in her hand. Mischievous lights danced in her eyes, but her voice was solemn. "We could have one," she said. "We could seat him on one of the regency chairs."

"That's about all for today, then," Mr. Squires said in a tone of finality. He flicked a crumb from his pearl gray flannel trousers and returned a sheer handkerchief to his purple-and-gray-plaid breast pocket.

Fran gave him a black fedora. "How soon will the join . . . place be ready? These hotel rooms are cramping our style."

A fortnight, he assured her. Kit took him to the door and pressed the elevator bell. "Make it as soon as possible, please."

Garden Club Listens To Address On Roses

M. E. Noggle At Friday Eve Session

M. E. Noggle presented a most enlightening talk on "Roses" at the November meeting of the Pickaway County Garden Club Friday at the home of Mrs. Clarence McAbee, Wayne Township. For the pleasure of the club, he showed his color slides of famous rose gardens of the East, photographed last summer when he visited these estates.

Mr. Noggle is the only person in this territory to have held membership with the American Rose Society and is the only rose grower outside the city of Columbus to hold a membership with the Columbus Rose Club.

His first color pictures were rare rose scenes, from what Mr. Noggle termed the most beautiful rock garden in this section of the state, that of Mrs. Ella Hornbeck of Pinckney Street.

A bit of humor was introduced in his talk as he asked those present to look at the little faces in his collection of pansy color groups. He said, "Pick out the 'Stalins', the 'Mussolinis' and the various other characters they resemble as their faces gaze at you."

Mr. Noggle next showed a group of pictures, slides of which he recently loaned to Carlton Lowe, the tuberous rooted begonia specialist of Ohio. Mr. Noggle had visited the Lowe gardens and obtained this rare collection. Mr. Lowe also specializes in fuchsias, propagating over 200 varieties. Gorgeous indeed were his autumn pictures of Logan Elm Park, the Ridge Road, near the Rock House, and Tar Hollow.

Recently, Mr. Noggle was asked to send his collection of Rose slides to Connard and Pyle, the famous rose growers of Pennsylvania.

During the summer season, Mr. Noggle contacted the well known Dr. McFarland, president of the American Rose Society. Mr. and Mrs. Noggle visited Hershey, Pa., and were guests at the Hershey Hotel, where they had access to these famous Rose Gardens, known to the world over for their beauty.

Within the next two years, 75,000 to 100,000 rose plants will be blooming in these gardens which cover many acres, Mr. Noggle said. A feature of the estate is the Rose Temple, where potted roses are kept and sold at cost to rose lovers. It is estimated that 21,000 persons visit these gardens on week ends when the roses are in bloom.

There are roses of every description and kind, continued Mr. Noggle, for example, 50 varieties of moss roses and 260 varieties of hybrid tea roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Noggle next visited Harrisburg and the gardens of Connard and Pyle, who have been responsible for the plantings of roses on the Dupont estate. Beautiful indeed were the slides of the famous fountains in the Dupont Rose Gardens.

Enroute through Pennsylvania, Mr. and Mrs. Noggle stayed at Red Rose Inn, which is over 200 years old, having been deeded to the owners years ago by William Penn, who said the only rental should be one red rose. Each year this ceremony presenting the red rose takes place.

Concluding his delightful program, Mr. Noggle showed sunset slides of the Dupont Gardens. The business hour was in charge of Mrs. Noggle, Club president who received the reports of Mrs. R. F. Lilly, secretary, and Mrs. Ione Reichelderfer, treasurer. The president read a selection by Mrs. Silas B. Waters that appeared recently in the club magazine, "The Garden Path". Mrs. Donald Watt, program chairman, presented the speaker of the evening.

The McAbee home was beautifully decorated with vases of chrysanthemums, tuberous begonias, roses and nasturtiums.

Mrs. McAbee, assisted by Mrs. G. G. Campbell, Miss Ella Crum, Miss Mattiet Crum and Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Pontius served refreshments to the group, from the table set in the dining room. A huge bowl of zinnias in coral shades, and blue ageratum centered the table. Mrs. Howard Jones presided at the silver coffee urn, all appointments of the table being in crystal and silver.

The December session will be at home of Mrs. Clark Hunsicker, West Union Street. Mrs. D. C. Harshberger of Jackson will be guest speaker and will act as judge also for the exhibit of winter flower arrangements.

Zelda Class Party

Vocal solos by Mrs. Harold Defenbaugh, piano solos by Miss Jeannette Wenrich, Stoutsville, and an interesting talk by Miss Margaret Hunsicker were included in the program for the Friday social session of the Zelda Bible Class in the parlors of the Methodist Church. Mrs. Defenbaugh's selections were "O Sleep, Why Dost Thou Leave Me", Handel, and "Last Song", by Rodgers. Miss Wenrich played her piano accompaniments. Miss Wenrich chose "The 5th Nocturne" by Chopin and "The Last Prelude" by Brahms for her numbers.

Miss Hunsicker presented an interesting account of her experiences as Pickaway County health nurse and told in detail of the work of the league.

Miss Reba Lee, class president, led the business meeting. Miss Adella Huffman, chairman of the program committee, presented the entertainment.

During the social hour, lunch was served to 23 members and visitors by Mrs. Charles Fullen, Mrs. Nelson Bell, Mrs. Floyd Shaw, Mrs. Floyd Hook, Miss Nellie Palm and Miss Reba Lee, hostesses for the evening.

A covered dish dinner is included in the plans for the next meeting.

ANNUAL CONTEST RULES REVEALED BY "SCHOLASTIC"

In the October fourteen issue of Scholastic Magazine rules were announced for the seventeenth annual contest in literature, music and the arts and crafts. The awards include $12,500 in cash, scholarships, merchandise, trips and national honors. This contest is open to high school students and all pupils in the eighth, ninth, tenth, eleventh or twelfth grades in public or private schools in the United States, possessions and Canada. The closing date is March 25, 1941.

Various classifications in the literary division for which awards will be given are poetry, essay, short story, literary article, book reviews, historical article, one act play, radio play, journalism, current events, humor and autobiographical sketch.

There will be no entry fee. A sample entry blank is shown in the October 14 issue of Scholastic. Manuscripts should be addressed to Scholastic Awards Literary Committee, 220 East 42nd Street, New York, N. Y. All work must be sent to arrive by March 25, 1941. Students who receive prizes or honorable mentions will be notified personally through the principal of their school.

In the art division, this year Scholastic art awards will be divided into two separate groups. Group one is open to students whose total art instruction is not more than five hours per week. Group two is open to students whose total art instruction is more than five hours per week. The groups will not compete against each other. All prizes offered are given in duplicate.

Sixteen art schools are offering a total of 23 scholarships. Directions for those who wish to compete for scholarships are given in the October 14 issue of Scholastic Magazine.

Art Awards and prizes are to be given in the following classifications: oils, water color, drawing inks, spatter inks, pencil drawings, prints, linoleum block prints, design for fabrics, costume design, advertising art, sculpture and ceramics, metal crafts, industrial design, mechanical drawing and design, and photography. Entries should be addressed to Scholastic Awards Art Committee, Chamber of Commerce Building, Pittsburgh, Pa. The work should arrive in the hands of the jury not later than March 25, 1941, the closing date.

All Circleville High pupils are eligible to participate in this contest. It is hoped that some pupils will enter work in one of the three groups.

EDITORIAL

HAWAII AND STATEHOOD
Next Tuesday the one hundred thousand people of Hawaii will go to the polls to vote. The question they will answer is "Do you want Hawaii to become the forty-ninth state of the United States?" The majority of Hawaiians want to become a state and there is no reason why she should not be granted her wish. Hawaii is industrious, progressive and prosperous. She pays more taxes than any one of fourteen states in the United States Systems of public education are excellent and her financial status is unquestioned.

The request to become a state is not a new one. It began in 1865 when Hawaii was still a monarchy. In 1898 she entered the Union as a territory. This, they thought, would be the first step leading to statehood. Her people are still waiting. They term this question as "the most important question ever to come before the Territory". They contend that they bear the same burdens and should have the same benefits as the inhabitants of continental America.

She would be granted the right to vote, to be represented in Congress, and would be allowed to build her own army and navy. This surely is a fine and hard-working territory. Don't you, as Americans, believe that she is capable of becoming the forty-ninth state of these United States?

RED AND BLACK WILL ANNOUNCE WINNING ENTRIES
An editorial contest was planned by the members of the E. M. S. club at their bi-monthly meeting, Wednesday evening at 7:30. The contest will be entered alternately by the club members. One month twelve members will write editorials on subjects of their choice and of any length. The following month the remaining twelve members will enter the contest. Mary Ruth Owens was appointed chairman of the entries.

Contestants' submissions will be judged by two high school English teachers and the monthly winner's writings will be published in the Red and Black. The contest was devised to further the club's purpose—to promote creative writing and an interest in literature.

Other business discussed during the evening included a money-making project to raise funds to enable the club members to attend a presentation at the Hartman Theatre. Lloyd Jones was asked to investigate the possibilities of obtaining a well-known news commentator as a speaker for one of the club's projects.

Following the business session Charles Mumaw and Mary Short gave a program of literature study. Mary read "The Game of Chicken" by Frank Merritt and lead a discussion of its varied qualities. Charles read "Conflict" by Yuri Tashima, a Japanese student.

SPEECH LEAGUE OFFERS VARIOUS RADIO PROGRAMS
This year the Ohio High School Speech League is again sponsoring a series of radio programs. Samuel R. Johnson, debate coach, hopes to make arrangements so that as many debaters as possible may listen to the series. These programs, which were started several weeks ago, are being heard over station WOSU every Tuesday afternoon from 2:00 to 2:30. The series will consist of discussions and speeches concerning the high school debate topic, "Resolved: That the Powers of the Federal Government Should be Increased."

On October 14, Professor V. A. Ketcham, Department of Speech at Ohio State University, gave a talk on "Some Ideals and Objectives of the Ohio High School League". Tuesday, October 22, a round table discussion on "The Principles and Techniques of Effective Discussion and Debate" was led by Professor Earl W. Wiley and Miss Francis Jones of the Speech Department at Ohio State.

In the program on Tuesday, October 24, definition of terms, historical background, and issues of the official high school debate topic were presented by Professor William C. Craig, department of Speech at Capital University and N. B. Rozelle, department of Speech at North high school in Columbus.

On November 5, the social, economic, and political implications of the debate topic will be emphasized. The persons who will participate in this discussion are Dr. H. Gordon Hayes of the department of economics, Dr. E. Allen Helms of the political science department, and Dr. Cecil C. North of the sociology department, all from Ohio State.

Varsity members of Ohio State's debate team will present a formal debate on the high school debate topic, November 12. Then on the following week the women's varsity will give a panel discussion on the subject: "Should State Universities Limit Enrollment?"

On the next two Tuesdays there will be regular debates, the first between Canton and Wooster high schools, and the other between Haysville and South High of Columbus.

The last program will be talks on "Educational Values of Dramatic Training and Practical Suggestions for Effective Dramatic Performance" by various professors in the department of speech at Ohio State.

UNIVERSITY BAND CHOOSES DEWEY
Red and Black staff members feel that many Circleville residents would be interested in the following letter as received recently by J. Wray Henry, high school principal.

Dear Mr. Henry:
Capital University feels quite sure that the faculty and student body of Circleville will be glad to know that a former student of their school is the new drum major of our band. Professor Crum has appointed Eugene Dewey drum major of his marching band. Mr. Dewey has strutted at the Kenyon, Heidelberg and Bowling Green games respectively, and will lead the band at the two remaining home games. Mr. Dewey has put on a fine show in front of the Capital band, and his showing certainly reflects the training which he received as the drum major of the Circleville band.

Sincerely yours,
Publicity Department
Capital University

DEBATERS WILL ATTEND CLINIC
According to present plans, Samuel R. Johnson said this week that he expects to send as many of his debate members as possible to Columbus to the fourth annual Ohio State University Debate Clinic on December the sixth and seventh. There the debaters will hear a debate between Ohio State and Indiana on the subject, "Resolved: That the Powers of the Federal Government Should Be Increased."

In addition to the formal debate, various aspects of the official high school debate topic will be discussed by leading authorities.

Those who have arranged these programs plan to have two rounds of practice debates for all visiting teams, with some expert to lead in the discussions.

About This And That In Many Sports

One of the greatest football spectacles ye janitor has ever cast his glimmers on was provided Friday night on Washington Township field, Massillon, when Coach Paul Brown's Tygers thumped a Toledo Waite team, 28-0. . . . What the score might have been on a dry field is a question, but Massillon's supremacy was never in doubt. . . . The game was played in mud through a rain that stopped for only a few moments, but the lack of good footing failed to take a single iota from the thrill that came with seeing two of the finest high school teams in the country tangle. . . . Toledo was unbeaten in 19 consecutive games, winning the Buckeye Bowl contest last year from Portsmouth. . . . Massillon has now stretched its winning streak to 30, and barring an earthquake that streak should continue for some time to come. . . . The secret of Massillon's success is a quartet of driving backfield men that break through quick holes in the line and dash into and through the opposing team's secondary before the defense knows where the ball might be. . . . Hard-blocking in the line, deception and willingness to take plenty to return much more makes the Tyger crew, the envy of every high school in Ohio. . . . Massillon has size, the team averaging around 173 pounds, and it has speed especially in the guard positions and in the backfield. . . . Despite the muddy ball, Gilmom, most publicized of the Tyger greats, booted two punts that traveled 70 yards each. . . . Waite has a splendid football team, one that likely is capable of beating any team in Ohio except Massillon, and that just isn't being done. . . . A half-time performance that eclipsed any ever before seen by ye janitor capped the event. . . . All lights on the field were turned out, the school's swing band with lighted instruments and lighted batons played several numbers, and then came a historical pantomime that was touching. . . . At its conclusion the entire assembly stood to sing "God Bless America." . . . Why Massillon is called the football capital of Ohio is easy to understand after witnessing that event.

Green Tiger Quintet Plays Tough Schedule

Circleville High School's basketball team, to be comprised almost entirely of boys inexperienced in varsity play, will take on one of the toughest schedules in its history when festivities start Tuesday, December 3, against the Washington Township team. Several new foes appear on the Red and Black schedule this fall, among them being New Lebanon, Columbus North and Jackson, O.

and Bob Bowsher, the only member of last year's fighting quintet returning being Joe Staley, who played a guard. Clark Martin and Jim Callihan are the other two lettermen returning.

Other positions must be filled from the reserve squad that lost only four games in 19 played last year, two or those being by one point.

TAIL-LIGHTS FOR COONS

HUNTINGTON, Ind., — Tail lights will be the style this fall for female coons released by the Huntington County Coon Hunters' Association. The lights will be small red reflectors bought by the Association and attached to the tails of the female coons when they are "planted." When the hunter sees a red glare in the beam of his flashlight, he will refrain from shooting the animal.

SOGGY FIELD MAY HINDER NOTRE DAME'S RAMBLERS

YANKEE STADIUM, NEW YORK, Nov. 2—A football team rated among the half dozen greatest in Notre Dame history lined up today against one of the least impressive eleven ever to wear the Army colors, and those few words may contain the story of this 26th battle of a hallowed series.

The rambling Irish, with all the prestige and tradition built up by Knute Rockne through the years and maintained now by his successor, Elmer Layden, were expected to win almost as they pleased before approximately 80,000 spectators.

The threat of rain, with shows forecast, could not affect the attendance much, for the park has been sold out for weeks, but if the turf is soggy and uncertain Army's slim chances would be bolstered moderately. In that kind of going either club might get the breaks.

FIRE IN FIRE ALARM BOX

GLENS FALLS, N. Y.—Ridge Street firemen were called to extinguish a fire in one of its own fire alarm boxes, Box 33, Bank Square. The fire was caused by a short circuit which developed in wiring at the base of the alarm. Fire Department electricians repaired the system.

Election Boards Given Supplies For Balloting

Ballots and booth supplies were being issued to presiding judges of Pickaway County's 40 voting precincts, Saturday, as election officials prepared for one of the largest county elections in recent years. Claude Kraft, clerk of the county board of elections, predicts that the county vote will approach 15,000. Approximately 15,700 ballots have been printed to supply voters.

Meanwhile both major political parties were winding up their campaigns. County Democrats have already completed their activity, their final rally being staged at Memorial Hall Thursday evening, with United States Senator Richard Russell of Georgia as principal speaker.

Republicans have scheduled one more event, an ox roast on the John Dunlap, Jr., farm, one mile east of Williamsport on Route 22, Monday, between 4 p. m. and 6 p. m. Friday night county Republicans, along with those of Ross and Hocking counties rallied at Adelphi, with Ray W. Davis, candidate for Representative to Congress, as speaker.

Polls will open Tuesday at 6:30 a. m. and will close at 6:30 p. m. Clerk Kraft has reported, with each voting booth marked plainly with an American flag. Three ballots will be handed to all voters in the county, and in addition voters in Circleville, Ashville, Saltcreek, and Washington Townships will consider local bond issues.

CONGRESSMAN CLAYPOOL

MERITS RE-ELECTION

H. K. (Happy) Claypool

An Experienced Congressman Backed by An Outstanding Record

In 1938 Congressman Claypool ran 10,000 votes ahead of all other Democratic candidates. Because of his record every fair political observer predicts that on November 5th he will sweep the district and be re-elected by an even greater majority.

Experience Counts—

A Member of Congress can rise to a position of power and influence only by virtue of experience. Those districts which continuously elect the same Congressman profit most because the more important the individual Congressman's position, the more he can accomplish for the people he represents.

Farmers—

Born and reared on a farm in Ross County, Mr. Claypool has a keen grasp of the problems that confront the farmer. He has been closely identified with every progressive farm measure adopted during his service in Congress. Under the present farm program, for which Mr. Claypool voted, THE FARMERS OF THIS DISTRICT WILL IN THE YEAR 1940 HAVE RECEIVED $1,284,600. IN PARITY PAYMENTS.

Labor—

Congressman Claypool has an outstanding labor record that has won for him the endorsement of every labor organization in his State and District, and the gratitude of all working men and women.

Flood Control—

Congressman Claypool is a member of the Flood Control Committee and has secured congressional approval of an $8,500,000 flood control program for the Eleventh District.

Rural Electrification—

Through Congressman Claypool's efforts almost $2,000,000 has been spent for rural electrification in the Eleventh District. More farms in this district have electric service than in any other district in Ohio.

War Veterans—

Congressman Claypool is ranking majority member of the Committee on World War Veterans Legislation. His efforts in behalf of war veterans and their dependents caused the Chairman of that Committee to state, "The veterans never had a better friend in Congress than 'Happy' Claypool has been."

Small Businessmen—

Congressman Claypool has sought to ease the tax burden on small businessmen by working for legislation to shift it to those best able to pay. He has promoted a plan to simplify the submission of governmental reports by having such reports clear through one agency and do away with duplication.

Peace and Preparedness—

Only Congress can declare war. Congressman Claypool has stated, "I am unconditionally opposed to and will vote against American participation in any foreign war." He has since first elected voted for all preparedness measures and fought against foreign and subversive influences by supporting the Dies Committee.

CONGRESSMAN CLAYPOOL OFFERS THE PEOPLE OF THE ELEVENTH DISTRICT EXPERIENCE AND AN OUTSTANDING RECORD. NO OTHER CANDIDATE CAN OFFER ANYTHING BUT PROMISES. MR. CLAYPOOL HAS BEEN TRIED AND FOUND TRUE—HE IS DEPENDABLE, ABLE, AND CONSCIENTIOUS. HIS RECORD AND EXPERIENCE MERIT YOUR SUPPORT.
